AUTUMN

Watching an autumn leaf dance in the breeze is one of the pleasures of the season, but, here in Brisbane, with so many evergreen plants in our local tropical landscape, it's a pleasure we often miss out on. Recreate that feeling year round with wall stickers that tumble down the walls as if you were walking under a beautiful old tree. The only thing that will be lacking is the crunch of the fallen leaves beneath your feet.

BUBBLES

Have you ever been walking down the street and encountered a lone soap bubble floating ethereally through the air? It's a magical experience that has perhaps been left in our childhoods. The Oracle Bubble Machine, a concept designed by Sander van der Haar, is a tribute to the lost dreams of our childhood and is aimed at feeding our imaginations. Or, if you're a little more old school, a pipe cleaner and dishwashing liquid will suffice.

BATHTUB

Although taking baths is currently a taboo activity in our water-stricken city, it's nice to dream once in a while about the kind of you might recline into if water weren't such a precious resource. The porthole bath is an original French double ended bath with two portholes cut into the side, giving a spot of nautical flavour to your bathtime. But be careful of just who might be peeking through those portholes.
